

SOUTH ASIA INITIATIVE

AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

PURABI: THE EAST IN ITS FEMININE GENDER

A South Asia Without Borders
seminar and musical performance by

PRAMITA MALLICK

Friday, Oct. 13th

The Thompson Room, The Barker Center

12 Quincy Street

8:00 pm

Free and open to the public

PRAMITA MALLICK is a leading exponent of the music of Rabindranath Tagore, the great Bengali poet who won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1913. She has recently recorded a CD with Professor Sugata Bose to accompany a book of translations of Tagore's poems and songs to be published in March 2007. She will perform nine songs from that CD in a special 'South Asia without Borders' concert in the Thompson Room of the Barker Center on Friday, October 13, 2006, at 8 pm. Professor Bose will read the English translations of the songs. The concert by Pramita Mallick will feature Siddharth Bhattacharjee on the tabla and Dipankar Deshmukh on the esraj.

Harvard University South Asia Initiative: www.sainit.fas.harvard.edu
(617) 496-4862 sainit@fas.harvard.edu